GIRLS DON'T CRY

Ele, a 19-year-old girl originally from northern Italy who had settled down with her mother in Basilicata, runs away with her father's old camper van just before her high school graduation exam to save it from getting scrapped. But, in the camper van she finds Mia, a 21-year-old Romanian girl who had taken shelter in it the night before.
The two girls' runaway turns into a journey towards the border.
The geographical border of the country, the border between friendship and love, between adolescence and adulthood.
