Camila and Marcos, best friends since their childhood, meet again after a long time without seeing each other.
Marcos, who is completely isolated from his past, lives in New York and combines theatre projects with his teaching job in a drama school for children. On the other hand, Camila, who has worked for several years as a cruise ships singer, feels her life has come to a standstill, so, looking for a change, shows up in New York by surprise. They walk together in their own introspection but they are not aware of who they really are, since, despite the passing of time, they still hide in the characters of their peculiar games that they use not to confront maturity.
Camila's arrival will become a journey of acceptance, redemption, and personal growth for both of them.
